We as his FAMILY respected his wishes. How dare you comment on MY grandfather's obituary in such a negative way. I watched him suffer and we prayed that God would take him so he would be free from the pain he suffered from for so many years. He died surrounded by love he raised me unlike the father I didn't have. I have to live with the pain of not having that wonderful man in my life like I have for the last 25 years. Not his children he had NO relationship with. So please mind your own business and let my pop rest in piece without YOUR negativity. If his children were really concerned about him they could've reached out to my mom or myself but they didn't. So, kindly mind your own business.

Today marks the two year anniversary of Pop's passing into Heaven. There is not a day that my daughter and I do not miss him. I was so blessed to have him help me raise her to be the upstanding young woman she has become. I chose to be in his life and he chose to be in mine to raise me as my father had left me at a young age. You are right, his two children were not mentioned....but that was my brother and I....not the ones who chose an alternate life. So, today as we celebrate his life and mourn his passing, My mom, my daughter and my brother send all our love up to the Heavens and know that he is no longer in agonizing pain and that we love and miss him each and every day.....peace be with you

Ya as he killed off his first wife by keeping her locked in a cold and dark bedroom and abused his blood children to the point they were numb from the pain. Yes God does have a plan my dear. One man walks out another walks in. I'd hate to walk in those shoes. He wanted nothing to do with his blood children because he couldn't stand the pain. I'm so glad you got to have him for that many years Carol A and Not telling his family ! Shows the very metal of the person you are as well. I guess it's true like attracts like

You are a truly ugly and terrible person. May God have mercy on that black soul of yours. From what I hear you nor your siblings were exactly the picture of perfection. My family is nowhere near perfect but how dare you speak ill of the people that raised me. Jealousy is an ugly thing. I'm sorry you never got to know the man that I knew. He repented from his sins in life by being the best man he could be for me. You think I'm too young to remember you and your sibling harassing my grandparents but I remember it all... So before you speak on a public forum and want to air your dirty laundry at least know what your actually speaking about. My grandparents gave me everything I ever wanted and more. Since I won't be a perry person like you are I hope you find peace in your life. Like I said in my above post you have mine and my mother's name. Take it off a public forum. You are more than welcome to personally message me what a terrible person I am when you don't even know me.

You have a truly ugly soul to want to air that kind of information on a public forum. I hope God has mercy on that black soul of yours. You have mine and my mother's name. You are more than welcome to personally message one of us to air your feelings instead of on a public stage. Jealousy is an ugly thing. I'm sorry you never got to know the man that I knew. The man that came to school functions, who picked me up from school everyday, taught me how to cook, bought me my first car, a man that did any and everything he could for me. No one is perfect and we all make mistakes in life. There are 3 sides to every story and I'm sure you will never change how you feel about him. But you have no right to speak on a public stage and air dirty laundry that may or may not be true. You have no right to tarnish my memories that I hold onto so fondly. And you also have no right to speak ill of a woman who lost her husband. If you want some truth he used to talk about your mother to me actually very fondly and he used to show me her picture and tell me stories of her so before you want to go accusing the dead of things make sure you actually know what your talking about.

If you want some truth when we had our time together He would speak fondly of your mother and show me pictures and tell me the stories of his life. So before you just assume that he was a terrible person until the day he died you may want to have some actual facts.
