

Carl William Hart

November 26, 1954 - February 16, 2025

Carl William Hart, age 70, of Hobart, Indiana, passed away peacefully on February 16, 2025, after a long battle with lung cancer. He was born in Evanston, Illinois, on November 26, 1954, to Mary and Richard Hart. Carl was a World Explorer who dedicated much of his life to academia and traveling, serving as a professor of English across the globe. His passion for education and cultural exchange led him to teach in the United States, the United Arab Emirates, Saudi Arabia, Equatorial Guinea, and Mexico. Through his travels, he touched countless lives, inspiring students from diverse backgrounds to pursue their own paths of lifelong learning. Carl is survived by his loving wife, Jaqueline; his daughter, Francesca; his two sons, Alexander and Carlos; his sister, Kristin, and his nieces Madeline, Katie, and Jennie. He will be remembered for his adventurous spirit, devotion to family, and commitment to broadening minds and horizons through education. Burns Funeral Home & Crematory entrusted with arrangements. www.BurnsFuneral.com

Tribute Wall

Mark
Smith

“ I was in the classroom next to Carl at BlueForce. He was such a great neighbor to have. He'll be missed greatly. He was an outstanding person. I was fortunate to work with him. My sympathies.

Mark Smith - February 25, 2025 at 05:42 AM

JM

“ I remember chatting with him one day about a point of grammar. He jokingly retorted that he wrote the book on it. Then, he produced the textbook he wrote. He was a fantastic person, and he will be missed by all.

JACOB MCCALL - February 24, 2025 at 02:17 PM

MA

“ Carl was truly a great man, I will always remember when I first joined Blueforce in 2019 in Saudi Arabia my classroom was next to his. As a new starter I bothered him a lot for help on procedures and he was always exceptionally helpful and welcoming. To this day 6 years later I still remember how he helped me settle in to a new job which was quite daunting at the time.

Mohammed Ali - February 23, 2025 at 03:10 PM

JW

“ Deepest condolences to Carl’s family members. He was greatly appreciated and highly valued as a co-worker, not just as a professional, but above all as a person. His publications, travel history, and diverse employment experiences all made for quite an exceptional character. He was notably a close former colleague of the History Channel presenter David Childress, reflecting his interest in some of the most mysterious sites from antiquity, and in current-day unexplained phenomena. It was such a privilege to have worked with him, and particularly to share in his old-school attention to detail for language matters. His gentle humour will be sorely missed. In fond memory of Carl. - from his grateful colleague, Jon Wordie

Jon Wordie - February 23, 2025 at 01:04 PM

JH

“ Carl was much appreciated, and he will be dearly missed. My condolences to all his friends and family.

Jason Hill - February 23, 2025 at 07:21 AM