“ The day of your funeral, I could not make it because it was so far away from me.

I was cleaning my house, and listening to an old playlist of music on my desktop computer that hadn't been hooked up in a few years. "Candlebox- Far Behind" came onto the speakers, blaring through my house as I worked through another cigarette, pushing myself in the heat to keep cleaning and re-organizing everything. I had spoken to you about my weekend I had planned to have (which only you and I will know) and you just made me smile and laugh! I played it through my mind, the words, the memory played as a video.

"Some would say the life you lived was sad, but you lived it anyway", and as the words roll out of the speakers into my mind...I started to text you at the very moment, asking "If you felt that bad, why didn't you just call me or talk to me?"..... and then I realized, and it hit me so hard...and the tears start to kick in. How could I have not noticed? You were so happy the week before you left us all, and I should have known that it was a guise. I remember our walks to the art shop, and I will continue to write the comic which you had idealized and wanted to illustrate....I only wish you were here for me to ask "why?"

*"where did I go wrong? I lost a friend.
somewhere along in the bitterness and...
I would have stayed up, with you all night, if I'd known, how to save a life..."*

“ Cary was a sweet lil boy the first time I met him . So independent and scared the daylight out of me the way he would take off and jump into the pool at his grandmas. . He turned into an awesome young man RIP Cary

“ It was a true pleasure getting to know you from downtown (120 Market Suites) and so glad you always enjoyed our coffee. I'm so shocked and saddened to hear of your passing. We were just laughing with you last Friday and I will cherish my last image of you smiling, healthy and happy in that moment in time. You will be missed :(
