“ There's no way I can list here how much Chris meant to me or how intertwined our lives were for so many years growing up. I've been very lucky in that most the best friends I have are that same I've had since grade school; I know that doesn't always happen. Chris was one of these - we stood up in each other's weddings, I went to the hospital to see his first-born, Grace, just after she was born. We ran races together, rode in squad cars together, and talked for ages. I'm still stunned and crushed. I'll miss you, my friend and my brother.

Condolences to you and your family. I worked with Chris in the jail and then on the swat team. I will always remember before briefing when we went on raids .We would always talk every conversation stemmed around you and the kids. He always talked about how big they were or what they were into oh and the pictures of the dog too. I will always remember how he loved his family. Again Condolences to you

I've known Chris since grade school. Although we didn't talk for years, I started running in to him working security at a store I merchandise in. That's where I learned about his family, kids, even the dog. He was always quick with a story, showing me pictures, raving about his children. It was always nice to see him and see and hear what adventures he had to tell me. I'll miss seeing him. Love and light to his wife, kids, and family. He loved you all so very much.
