“ He was a good friend, he always meant well and lived there in the moment, he was a jolly good fellow and though he owed me money before his death, who does he not and did anyone actually expect him to pay it back? No, so thats on all us not him.

He loved his dad Jack and liked to go fishing and Jack would snap out of whatever trance he's been in when you take him to do something he loves like fishing, only way to get the man talking again.
