“ Hello friends and family... this is Jimmy's momma, Rommy... I just want to make sure you all know that his demise was completely unexpected. Although he had troubles with substance abuse and therefore, trouble with the law, he was finally on the the right path. He was in work release. He had a "full time plus" job at Genova Plastics in Rensselaer. He worked 6 AM til 6PM and over 40 hours per week. At first, he walked to work. Then he bought a bike and, most recently, a truck. Reinstated his driver's license and got the truck insured. He was on the right path, scheduled to be released on December 9th. His plans were to find a place for him and Stephanie, get married, buy a house and become a father... something he longed to be. Unfortunately, his plans were not part of God's plan and he passed away both unexpectedly and under mysterious circumstances. The initial autopsy was inconclusive. There was no obvious cause of death. We now await toxicology. In my heart, I do not believe Jimmy intended to die. He had come too far. He had too many plans for his future with Stephanie. The irony is overwhelming. I just "can't even", if you all know what I mean. I'm conveying all of this now because I don't want preconceptions out there. I don't want people to assume anything that makes no sense at all. Our Jimmy had everything to live for. I thank you for your love and prayers and hope to see you on Wednesday. God Bless.
