“ Tom and Vicki and family, my heart aches for you. I can't even imagine what you're going through. Jennifer was one of the sweetest people I know, and she's gone way to soon. As a mom with kids her age, I keep thinking of you, and have been praying for peace and comfort.

“ Jenny and I became friends in 6th grade when we discovered we both had a crush on the same boy. One would think that would create competition between us but apparently we were destined to be friends. We had so many fantastic memories together. She was definitely one of a kind and deeply loved. I will miss her beyond measure. I am lucky to have had a friendship with her that makes saying goodbye so hard. In many ways, I am a better person because she was in my life.

To Jenny's family: I can't imagine the pain you must be feeling at this time but please remember you are not alone in your grief. I know you loved her very much and how special she was to you. I know nothing I can say will lessen your pain or take it away. I hope you are able to find strength in each other and the memories of her will help comfort you at this time.

“ My fondest memories of Jennifer:

Jenny would often visit me when I used to work at the mall. Anyone who's ever worked retail knows how horrible the customers can be. I'd be able to unload when she came in and she'd always make me smile, never taking the situation too seriously.

And any party our friend Adri would have, Jenny sought me out and sat by my side, always caring to catch up and share a few laughs. It was there that we exchanged smiles and told perverted jokes/stories, feeding off one another's wackiness and enjoying one another's company.

I will always treasure those precious moments, too few and far between. My deepest condolences to the Sirota family and to you, Jenny, thanks for the laughs-bruised thighs, hard salami pics, and of course hairy nipples.

Cheers to you and your life well lived, my chum. You will be greatly missed.

*With heartfelt sympathy,
Stephanie Castillo*
