“ My husband, Tony, and I had returned from vacation and were told about Kenny. We are still in shock. We just saw him at the retiree breakfast the month before. As one of only two female machinists at Mittal, I owe my job to Kenny. He was a great instructor and a better friend. He called me sis, my own brothers don, t even do that. I will miss his wit and his dedication and passion for the interests he cared about. Sharyn & Tony Zygmunt-machinists

“ I first met Ken 30 years ago on a bike ride. Wow was he good. And then I met again 8 years ago as my aviation instructor. Ken taught me to become the conscience pilot I am today. I owe so much to him. He loved to help. And his help was always good. I will miss Kenny

“ The first time I rode with Ken, he showed up on a single speed bike, I thought, yeah right, he won't last long. Little did I know he used to race competitively, he was a very strong rider. I used to stay up with him for awhile, but not for the entire ride. I would ask him about old racing stories, or flying, he always kept things interesting. I'm sure everyone who knew him, as well as I, will miss him greatly, he certainly was one of a kind. With our sympathy, Ken & Diane Terry

“ I met Kenny while cycling with the Crank Club. Being a professional pilot, we had a lot to talk about while chewing up the miles. I always looked forward to cycling with Ken, he was someone to be truly admired. God Speed Kenny, see you on the road again someday.

“ Ken was a very private person so we knew very little about him personally other than that he was a flight instructor and an avid cyclist. Ken would ride to the club rides and sometimes he would complete the ride and other times he would branch off and do his own thing many times heading in the direction of the airport. In fact our last ride with Ken was on Saturday when he rode to the Kouts Library to meet the group and stayed with us until Toto. As usual he said his goodbyes and headed for the airport. We told him to be careful as we just recently lost another avid cyclist the day before in a freak bike accident. We were so shocked and saddened by the news that Ken was no longer with us. We enjoyed his company on many rides and often times he would hang with the person at the back of the pack just to keep them company. We know that Kenny loved cycling as much as anyone could. We are pretty sure that Ken and Dan are at the head of the peloton in heaven. We will miss them both but we know that we will feel their spirits when we ride. Miss you Ken. Our sympathies and prayers to his family.
