“ Margarita was an amazing example of one who loves hard and fights even harder. I remember her getting up every morning doing the girls hair, I knew then she had muscle. My favorite picture in elementary she actually did my hair with the braid in front. From movie nights, to chasing kids with chonclas. Every event she pushed to be there. Introduced me to chila (hot sauce) the Cheeto bag. Halloween gatherings bobbing for apples, and her love for chijuajuas (Hi, this is the Torres residence she would say in high pitched voice to the pups and they would speak w her in dog language. So much awesomeness and it went by as fast as a star shooting in the sky. She was the other mother for when mine had to work. We would call each other fea” even though it means ugly in Spanish we really were saying beauty. She fought and had the victory, now to the next level she will be waiting to walk us through the door. It’s hard to not cry but I no she would get that look and say don’t you do that In a stern voice with the waving of the hand. Peacefully she was called by the father above and at the golden gates she will be there to walk us threw the door in due time (hopefully not with that sandal in air when I come ;)) the pain no longer is there, joy peace and love is all that’s felt in radiant glory. An angelic beauty who invisibly watches over us all. Be strong, not losing hope when the battle is difficult, and thee shall be rewarded gloriously.
