“ Grandma, you were my best friend, as you said I was yours ❤️. We made a good team. I was honored to hold your hand when you took your last breath. I am grateful we all were able to visit the past few weeks and make memories with you.

I miss you so very much. It was so hard when you moved up to Wisconsin for those years but we talked so many times a day and made it the best we could until you moved back to me.

You were always my go to person. My calm. I am thankful you showed me the signs you have so I know you're ok but to just have you face to face ❤️. Or like that song says, five more minutes. I am glad you're back with Grandpa, where you have wanted to be. But I am thankful you're popping back here to check on me. Keep coming back because I need you. Make sure to check on others too. We love and miss you so much. You will always and forever be My first best friend.

I love and miss you!

Always and forever

Until we reunite again

“ Grandmer’s I miss you every single day. As you would say, we were connected at the hip. We could read each other’s minds like no other. From the moment I was born you were my person! My constant! My Grandma! I can still hear you say, “you’re my girl and I love you.! That has never nor will it ever, change. Each day I wake up I still say Good morning grandma, I love you.

One day, when I am really old, you will respond. You will grab my hand, comfort me as you always have, and say it’s time for all of us to be together again. Until that day, I know you are my guardian angel, the light during the dark days, and forever my grandma! I love you and I will ALWAYS be your girl!!!
